Thaw Prefers Death In Chair Rather Than Madhouse Cell

Young Pittsburg Millionaire Issues Another Ultimatum to his Counsel Today.

New York, Jan. 30.—Harry K. Thaw delivered another ultimatum to his attorneys. He notified them that the course they are now steering, in the hope of landing him in a madhouse rather than in the death chair at Sing Sing, is objectionable to him. He declared that he would take no part in any defense that would place him in the slightest jeopardy of being sent to the madhouse. He said he would not be a patient in the hospital for the criminally insane.

When court opened the defendant fairly rushed to his seat, brushing by his family and solemnly giving them a glance, but alone the nod and smile with which he usually greets them.

"I would rather take my chances on being electrocuted than on being railroaded to any insane asylum," Thaw is reported to have told the Attorney Peabody.

$50,000 GIFT WITH A SPIRIT STRING.

Kokomo, Ind., Jan. 30.—Accompanying a bequest of $50,000 to the Swedenborgian church of this city by George W. Doffenbaugh, a wealthy but eccentric citizen, is the condition that his spirit shall be elected a member of the board of trustees of the organization and shall be allowed to meet with it and take part in proceedings incident to carrying out the request.

BROKE HER WRIST.

McComb, O., Jan. 30.—Mrs. Ayres, of Wauseon, who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. M. Maxwell, fell when leaving the Disciple church, of which her son-in-law is pastor, and broke her hip and wrist.

Two Of Thaw Jury Excused

Flurry Caused by a Sudden Move of Attorneys—Jerome and Counsel for Prisoner Agree.

FRIENDLY FEELING OF MRS. WM. THAW AND COUNTESS OF YARMOUTH FOR YOUNG WIFE IS MARKED.

New York, Jan. 30.—The first big surprise of the trial of Harry K. Thaw came yesterday when Justice Fitzgerald, on the motion of District Attorney Jerome, and with the consent of attorneys for the man accused of the murder of Stanford White announced that two of the jurors selected in the early days of the proceedings would be excused from further service.

"Without any reflection on the jurymen, whatsoever," said the presiding judge, "jurors No. 4 and 6 will be excused."

The men in question were Arthur S. Campbell, a superintendent of telephone construction, and Harold R. Faire, a printer and publisher of a pamphlet circulated in Wall street. The court room was crowded for the opening of the afternoon session when the announcement was made.

freight agent, 38 years old, unmarried, a native of New Orleans, La. No. 4—David S. Walker, real estate broker, 34 years of age, unmarried. A son of one Brian Walker.

A Louisiana juror, Thaw seemed to be particularly well pleased with the selection of both Campbell and Walker and the prosecution withdrew its pending challenges against the talesmen. As soon as Mr. Dennee said he was a Louisiana juror Thaw was seen in earnest consultation with his lawyers.

Walker was accepted by the defense in spite of the fact that he said he knew Stanford White and many of the dead architect's friends. He also had formed an opinion in the case and expressed it many times. These facts, Walker declared, would not prevent his rendering a fair and impartial verdict.

He had not seen White for a year before his death.

Thaw's attorneys set a high water mark for peremptory challenges when they summarily excused from service seven talesmen who had been declared legally competent by the court. The state challenged peremptorily but once. The defense now has 15 of its peremptory challenges left and the state 17.

The members of the Thaw family were all in court and for once disarmed those who had reported a serious break in the family relations. Mrs. William Thaw, mother of the prisoner, conversed and chatted with Mrs. Harry Thaw constantly.

The Countess of Yarmouth also talked freely with young Mrs. Thaw at intervals. Miss May Mackenzie was a participant in several of the family chats, notably during the luncheon recess, when the party sat for a time in a circular group and carried on general conversation.

The prisoner seemed to be in high spirits and the fact that the actual hearing of the case had been put back a full day or more by the court's action in excusing two of the sworn jurors did not seem to have the least effect upon him.

It is believed that the taking of the testimony cannot be reached before Thursday afternoon or Friday morning.

- Saarbrücken, Prussia, Jan. 28, 1907, 148 killed.

There is no hope that any of the men are living.

With a detonation heard for miles, and which hurled debris hundreds of feet into the air, dust in the Stuart mine, near Fayetteville, exploded at 1.25 o'clock yesterday afternoon, bringing a terrible death to the 75 or more men who were at work more than 500 feet below the surface. It was not possible for the rescuers to reach the bottom of this shaft until this afternoon.

The disaster is perhaps the worst, in the number killed, in the history of the state. Most of the men were Americans, and many of them were married and had large families.

OUTBREAK

OF SCARLET FEVER REPEATED IN CHICAGO DESPITE HEALTH MEASURES, BREAKING RECORDS.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—The scarlet fever epidemic, which was said by the officials of the Health Department to be lessening, has broken out with renewed violence. All records were broken today when 407 new cases of the fever were reported.

It has been the opinion of the Health Department that the epidemic was due to milk which had been infected in various dairies outside of the city, and such elaborate efforts had been made to stop the contagion from this cause that it was believed that the epidemic was practically under control.

Trainmen Accused Of Manslaughter

Three Arrested For the Horror at Woodville, Ind.

A Fourth Under Indictment is in A Hospital.

"Signal" Whistle, Strangely Blown, Sends Crew to Death in a Collision.

Laporte, Ind., Jan. 30.—The names of the four men indicted last week by the Porter County Grand Jury in connection with the wrecking of the westbound B and O immigrant train at Woodville, Ind., November 12, were made public this afternoon, when John D. Porter, Frank L. Dalmour, passenger conductor and engineer, and Samuel J. Moste, conductor of the freight that collided with the immigrant train, were arrested, charged with involuntary manslaughter. They were released on bonds of $5,000 each.

The fourth man is Tony Burks, engineer of the freight train. He is still in the hospital, slowly recovering from the injuries he received.

The returning of indictments against Porter and Dalmour is something of a surprise since, in the coroner's report, the greater blame is attached to Burks and Moste, for not heeding the supposed danger signals. The indictments against Porter and Dalmour indicate also that the grand jury must have had evidence laid before it to show that the passenger train did not carry signals to warn the freight crew. When the men will be arraigned has not been announced.

The Indiana Railroad Commission will resume its investigation of the Woodville wreck next Thursday.

"SIGNAL" WHISTLE

Strangely Blown and Trains Crashed—Four Men Killed.

Sherburne Falls, Mass., Jan. 30.—In a collision between an express train and an extra freight on the Pittsburg division of the Boston and Maine Railroad at South River, four employees of the railroad were killed and several injured. The rolling stock was badly smashed and the traffic was greatly delayed.

As the express was running at the usual speed the "signal" whistle was blown for some reason that does not yet appear, and the express came to a sudden stop. When a brakeman was endeavoring to place signals behind the train the freight came along and crashed into the rear of the express.

PAINTSHOP

Of the Baldwins Burned.

LOCOMOTIVE WORKS' LOSS OF $1,000,000 IS COVERED BY INSURANCE—FOUR MEN SLIGHTLY HURT.

Philadelphia, Jan. 30.—Fire which started with an explosion in the paintshop destroyed one entire section of the big Baldwin Locomotive Works last night, entailing a loss of $1,000,000. The destroyed building is about 175 feet long by 150 deep.

About 1,000 men were employed in the burned building, which was five stories high.

The fire was discovered in the east end of the building a few minutes before 6 o'clock, when the workmen were preparing to leave, and though the flames spread quickly all were able to get out of the building safely. Shortly after the fire started the upper portion of the wall on Spring Garden street fell into the street and one fireman and three workmen were caught by the falling bricks, but fortunately received only slight injuries. The firemen, with the assistance of the fire patrol from the plant succeeded in getting the flames under control within an hour after the fire was discovered.

The Baldwin Locomotive Works is the largest industrial plant in the United States, and employs 18,000 men in this city and nearly 10,000 in departments at Lewistown and other places. John H. Converse, President of Burnham, Williams & Co., which operates the Baldwin plant, said that the loss was fully covered by insurance. The 1,000 men employed in the burned building he said, would be put to work in other departments.

IS THE BID OF O. D. FISHER FOR "WAGON SERVICE" OF THE POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT AT LIMA FOR ONE YEAR.

At the post office department in Washington, D. C., yesterday bids were opened for "wagon service" in various Ohio cities, Lima among the number.

The only bid for doing the work in Lima, according to dispatches sent out from the capital, was submitted by O. D. Fisher, who offers to do it for three thousand dollars a year. There being no opposition it is practically a certainty that Mr. Fisher will be awarded the contract.

FIREMEN'S BODIES FOUND

DEBRIS AT BUFFALO GIVES UP ITS THREE DEAD.

Buffalo, Jan. 30.—The bodies of Lieutenant James Naughton, Pipeman John I. Hankey and Pipeman Meagan, the three firemen caught by falling walls in Monday's fire, were recovered.

Meagan's body was found frozen solidly into the debris, and was badly crushed and battered.

HIGGINS SINKING

Olean, N. Y., Jan. 30.—It is believed former Governor Higgins has taken a turn for the worse. The doctor was hurriedly summoned at 2 o'clock this morning and is now at Mr. Higgins' bedside. The house is ablaze with light and members of the family are moving about.

MOTHER AND BABY KILLED.

Bellevue, O., Jan. 30.—Nickel-Plate Passenger Train No. 3, Conductor Lindley and crew of this city, struck a carriage at Oakland today containing Mrs. Lida Ridenhour and a thirteen-month-old baby daughter. Both occupants of the carriage were instantly killed.

EVENTS OF LONG AGO

FIFTY YEARS AGO
YESTERDAY.

The Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company completed its extension to Wheeling, W. Va. Preston S. Brooks, who gave Senator Charles Sumner a beating from which he never recovered, died. A line of coast and river steamers to run between St. Louis and New York was projected.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
YESTERDAY.

A squad of Austrian gendarmes was massacred by Herzegovians insurgents. Baltimore society was stirred by a snub administered to it by Oscar Wilde.

Alarm was felt for Stanley, the African explorer, who had not been heard from for two years.

Business was killed for the farmers of northern Ohio by the bad crops.

The Lake Shore Railroad adopted a rule requiring engineers to "take a hour's rest after each run."

TEN YEARS AGO
YESTERDAY.

General Russell A. Alger agreed to accept the war portfolio in McKinley's Cabinet.

An overland passenger train was held up by a band of robbers near Roseburg, Ore.

The Senate passed a bill providing for an international monetary conference.

The reorganization of the steel pool was agreed upon.

The Paris newspaper attacked the Franco-Russian alliance.

FIVE YEARS AGO
YESTERDAY.

McKinley day was observed by the Ohio Legislature.

Admiral Schley's appeal to the President to review the findings of the court in his case was made public.

Twenty Cleveland merchants were arrested for violating the national revenue law regulating the sale of kerosene.

Bishop Potter, of New York, took the stand that saloons were a necessary evil.

BEAUTY MORE THAN SKIN DEEP

Shot Himself For Love

YOUNG MAN NEAR WAPAKONETA KILLED HIMSELF YESTERDAY.

Wapakoneta, O., Jan. 30.—Milton W. Shaw, 23 years old, committed suicide by shooting himself in the temple at the home of his stepfather, John Siles, near this city. The young man had seemed to be in the best of spirits. It is thought that perhaps an unfortunate love affair may have led him to commit the act, as just before he shot himself he posted a letter to a former sweetheart at Marion, Ohio, where he had formerly been employed. Shaw leaves a mother and four brothers.

Don't Want Lima Bad Men

COLUMBUS AUTHORITIES WOULD RETURN ALL WORKHOUSE PRISONERS.

Columbus has shown that she is not very desirous of accepting workhouse prisoners from this city. The board of public safety had applied to the Columbus workhouse authorities for a bid on confining prisoners and has received word from Columbus that prisoners will be taken, but a contract for return to Lima after serving their sentences must be made. The Columbus people have the idea that Lima prisoners, on their release would stay in that city, and would become a further trouble for the police.

Doctors Admit.

That They Can Do Nothing More For Your Stomach Than Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are Doing Every Day.

CURBS NOTHING TO TRY.
According to the expert analysis of government authorities in the United States and Great Britain, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain the exact elements provided by nature for digesting food in the healthy stomach.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have saved sufferers from stomach disorders millions of dollars by giving them, in one small 50-cent package, more relief than countless treatments by physicians would bring about at $5.00 per visit.

Perhaps you are afflicted with dyspepsia—or some kindred disease arising from a disordered digestion. It may be heartburn, heartburn, palpitation, liver trouble, insomnia, nervous debility. They all have their beginning in a stomach which does not secrete the juices or grind the food which is taken into it.

If so we urge you to send for a free trial package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. It will cost you nothing and surely will bring you no gain unless you find, after using it, that you are benefited and feel that you need a full-sized package.

There is absolutely no danger in using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Nothing is contained in them that has not been subjected to the closest scrutiny by the government officials. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest your food without demanding a careful diet. One grain of these tablets has power to digest 5,000 grains of ordinary food. You can be sure therefore that no matter what your condition, these little tablets taken after each meal will shortly restore your stomach to its normal condition and render it capable of doing its work unassisted.

We withhold the names of hundreds who have written us, expressing their gratitude to this simple substitute for nature. Send for trial package today. F. A. Stuart Co., 70 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

Lake Shore Electric Earnings.
The remarkable showing of earnings of the electric line is illustrated by the Lake Shore electric, whose earnings per mile during 1906 were $5,700.

RODE IN HIS CAR.

Engineer Had President Lincoln As A Daily Passenger.

Jack Wheeler is probably the only engineer living who has the honor of having had a president of the United States as an almost daily passenger with him in his engine cab, says the Erie Railroad Employers' Magazine. It was while the army of the Potomac was forming that Wheeler had his first meeting with President Lincoln. Day after day " Honest Abe" would come to Aquia Creek and take a trip in the old locomotive down to Falmouth, Va.

There were no passenger cars on the trains that hauled the president back and forth, and so Lincoln and his two boys used the seat on the fireman's side during his run to the front. The trip was one of about ten miles, and President Lincoln's journey was to see the dress parade that was held every afternoon.

Under such circumstances it was natural that Mr. Wheeler became quite intimately acquainted with the great president, and yet his principal impression of the famous man was that he wore "a shockingly bad hat that always looked to be a long time out of date."

President Lincoln always greeted Wheeler with a warm handclasp and a few cheery words regarding proposed trip of the day, and then generally subsided into silence, excepting as he chatted with his two sons. With his long frock coat, his tall, straight hat and his gaunt figure, Wheeler remembers him as one of the most awkward men he ever saw. But once in a while the president's face would light up when something pleased him, and this was the signal for a short story or a joke of some kind that Lincoln would fire across the cab at Wheeler.

"I did not think that any great honor was being conferred on me at those times by having the president ride in the cab with me," said Mr. Wheeler, as he sat in his handsome home in Meadville and recalled the experiences of his early railroading. "On the contrary, I thought I was doing 'Old Abe' a favor to let him ride in the cab with me."

Wage Conference In Chicago.
Chicago, Jan. 30.—Conference between the general managers of the railroads west, southwest and north-west of Chicago, and representatives of the organizations of the conductors and trainmen regarding the demands of the latter, commenced yesterday with a preliminary meeting. The men are asking an eight-hour day and an increase of wages running from ten to fifteen per cent. A peaceful solution of the differences is expected by all parties to the conference.

Supreme Court Clerk is Still Missing From Columbus—Holds Money

RELONGING TO OTHERS AND IS WANTED TO EXPLAIN DISCREPANCIES IN HIS BOOKS.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 30.—If Supreme Court Clerk Lawson E. Emerson does not appear at his office tomorrow he will be removed from his position by the judges of that tribunal, and Joseph G. Obermyer, of Cincinnati, his present chief deputy, will be appointed as Clerk, pro tempore. In direct contradiction to his statement made at Wheeling, W. Va., yesterday, he did not put in an appearance today, although it was confidently expected that he would present himself. Tomorrow morning State Auditor Guilbert will place Wheeler Wilcox, of his office, upon the books of the Clerk's office for the purpose of ascertaining where the state stands.

This morning John N. D. Menger, representing the surety company which furnished Emerson's bond, began an investigation of the financial affairs of the office. It is announced that he found the first year's administration correct, but on second discrepancy amounting to $1,000 was disclosed. It is now accepted that the missing Clerk's removal is an assured thing. Today the judges of the Supreme Court met at chambers behind locked doors and discussed the Clerk's affairs.

After it was finished, Judge Price, of Lima, visited the private office of the Clerk and placed in his desk a copy of the charges against him. This was the first official confirmation of the fact that these charges had been formulated, although this important essential was made known last Monday. The specific allegations in the charges were refused to the public this afternoon, but sufficient is known to make the statement that there are two counts one being that Emerson was derelict in paying the examiners, and the other that he was negligent in his duties as Clerk of the Court.

Who Holds The Stock

OF THE WARREN OIL COMPANY IS WHAT PARTIES WHO OBTAINED JUDGMENT AGAINST THE COMPANY WANT TO KNOW.

In a petition filed yesterday by the bank of Ft. Recovery ex rel. George R. McDaniel and son, of Mercer county, it is asked that George R. McDaniel, R. W. McDaniel, A. G. Ruchel, M. G. Donovan, F. M. Bell and the Warren Oil Company be compelled to make a statement as to their holdings of Warren oil company stocks.

The plaintiffs state that they recovered a judgment against the defendants for the sum of $236 in a justice court of this city last October, which, together with the costs and interest amounted to a total of $275.68 but that there seems to be no property on which to levy to satisfy the judgment.

Wherefore they wish to learn the amount of stock held by each of the stockholders, that they may be able to levy against their property in proportion as they are interested in the capital stock of the oil company. The plaintiff wants also to learn if there are others connected with the concern, of which they have no knowledge.

Prescribed and Endorsed by a Temperance Doctor

Dr. T. P. Palmer, River, Tenn., heartily endorses Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, the great renewer of youth.

Dr. Palmer, who is a strong temperance man, praises Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as a "medicinal and for medicinal use only." He writes:

"I endorse Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as a medicine and for medicinal use and for nothing else. I oppose intemperance and favor all laws that tend toward the suppression of drunkenness."—T. P. Palmer, M. D. River Tenn., Aug. 9, 1906.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

The leading hospitals throughout the world use Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as the only alcoholic medicine for convalescence. If you wish to keep strong and vigorous and have on your cheeks the glow of perfect health, take Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey regularly, according to directions, and take no other medicine. It is dangerous to fill your system with drugs. They poison the body and depress the heart, while Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey tones and strengthens the heart action and purifies the entire system. It is recognized as a medicine everywhere. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has been analyzed and tested by chemists for the past fifty years, and has always been found absolutely pure and to contain great medicinal properties.

CAUTION.—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, be sure you get the genuine. It is sold only in sealed bottles, never in bulk. Look for the trademark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Price, $1.00. Illustrated card is enclosed and doctor's advice free. PROMOTION

For Carl L. Wilcoxon of The Western Ohio.

POPULAR SUPERINTENDENT RE-SIGNS SITUATION AND WILL BE IDENTIFIED

WITH THE PITTSBURGH & BUTLER RAILWAY COMPANY AS GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT.

Carl Wilcoxon, the popular superintendent of the Western Ohio Railway company today announced his resignation, which will take effect in about two weeks. At that time Mr. Wilcoxon will accept a situation with the Pittsburgh & Butler Railway company, of Pittsburgh, as general superintendent.

The change comes as a promotion. The new situation is not only an advancement in the railroad world, but it carries with it a large increase in salary. Mr. Wilcoxon's rise in the electric railway field has been rapid, and he now has more honor and responsibility than is usually placed upon shoulders so young.

Concerning Mr. Wilcoxon, the Wapakoneta News says: Carl Wilcoxon has been with the Western Ohio Railway company for the past six years and has been more than successful. For four years he was chief train dispatcher, and for the past two years has been superintendent, succeeding his father, C. N. Wilcoxon, who is now the general manager of the Cleveland, Southwestern & Columbus railway. During his period of service with the Western Ohio, Mr. Wilcoxon has for the most part resided in Wapakoneta. Here he has made friends in countless numbers. He has always been found considerate and obliging and it is with much regret his friends permit him to accept the new situation. While he has found time to make himself known among our citizens, he has also made his presence felt in the railroad world.

Mr. Wilcoxon is one of the young men who are doing things. He belongs in that class of the new century hustlers who not only keep the wheels of progress moving but is giving them an added motion. His service as train dispatcher for the Western Ohio was so satisfactory to the company, that at the first opportunity he was promoted to the position of superintendent. He is now only 28 years of age, yet for the past two years he has held the title of the Western Ohio, passenger, freight and express, in his hands. So well has he attended to his duties that all the business of

THE CONQUEST OF CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beuchaine," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

side her waiting for the music to begin. Ariel was grateful for him. The orchestra dourished into "La Paloma," he put his arm mournfully about her and, taking her right hand with his left, carried her arm out to a rigid right angle, beginning to pump and balance for time. They made three false starts and then got away. Ariel danced badly; she hopped and lost the step, but they persevered, bumping against other couples continually.

She caught her partner making a burlesque face of suffering over her shoulder and, turning her head quickly, saw for whose benefit he had constructed it. Eugene Buntz, flying exasperated by Marie, was bestowing upon Mr. Filicoff a condescendingly commiserative wink. The next instant she tripped in her train and fell to the floor at Eugene's feet, carrying her partner with her.

There was a shout of laughter. The young hostess stopped Eugene, who would have gone on, and he had no choice but to stoop to Ariel's assistance.

"It seems to be a habit of mine," she said, laughing loudly. "I do not seem to see the hand he offered, but get to her feet without help and walked quickly away with Norbert who proceeded to live up to the character he had given himself.

"Perhaps we had better not try it again," she laughed. "Well, I should think not," he returned, with the frankest gloom. With the air of conducting her home he took her to the chair against the wall whence he had brought her. There his responsibility for her seemed to cease. "Will you excuse me?" he asked, and there was no doubt that he felt that he had been given more than his share that evening, even though he was fat.

Ariel sat through more dances, interminable dances and intermissions, in that same chair, in which, it began to seem, she was to live out the rest of her life. Now and then if she thought people were looking at her as they passed she broke into a laugh and nodded slightly, as if still amused over her mishap.

After a long time she rose and, laughing cheerfully to Mr. Filicoff, who was wandering in the doorway and replied with a wan smile, stepped out quickly into the hall, where she almost ran into her grandmother, Jonas Tabor. He was going toward the big front doors with Judge Pike, having just come out of the latter's library, down the hall.

Jonas was breathing heavily and was shockingly pale, though his eyes were very bright. He turned his back upon his grandnephew and went out of the door. Ariel turned from him quite as abruptly and re-entered the room whence she had come. She laughed again to her fat friend as she passed him and, still laughing, went toward the fatal chair, when her eyes caught sight of Eugene Buntz and Marie coming in through the window. She went to the window and looked out. The porch seemed deserted and was faintly illuminated by a few Japanese lanterns. She sprang out, dropped upon the divan and, burying her face in her hands, cried heartbrokenly. Presently she felt something alive touch her foot, and her breath catching with alarm, she started to rise. A thin hand, issuing from a shabby sleeve, had stolen out between two of the green tufts and was pressing upon one of her shoes.

"What?" said Joe. "Don't make a noise! What were you crying about?" "Nothing," she said, the tears not ceasing to gather in her eyes.

"I want to know what it was," he insisted. "Didn't the fools ask you to dance? Well, what do you care about that for?"

"I don't," she answered; "I don't." Then suddenly, without being able to prevent it, she sobbed.

She gave way all at once to a gust of sorrow and bitterness. She beat her breast and caught his hand and laid it against her wet cheek. "Oh Joe," she whispered brokenly, "I think I have such hard lives, you and I! It doesn't seem right while we're so young! Why can't we be like the others? Why can't we have some of the fun?"

He withdrew his hand with the embarrassment and shame he would have felt had she been a boy. "Get out!" he said feebly.

She did not seem to notice, but, still sobbing, rested her elbows on her knees and her face in her hands. "I try so hard to have fun, to be like the rest, and it's always a mistake, always, always, always!" She rocked herself slightly from side to side. "If I am a fool, it's the truth, or I wouldn't have come tonight. I want to be attractive. I want to be in things. I want to laugh like they do."

"I'll tell you something," Joe whispered, chuckling desperately. "Gena made me unpack his trunk, and I don't believe he's as great a man at college as he is here. I opened one of his books and saw one had written in it, 'Prigmeuse Buntz, the Class Try-to-be.' He'd never noticed, and you ought to have heard him go on! You'd have just died, Ariel. I almost but wide open. It was a mean trick in me, but I couldn't help showing it to him. Joe's object was obtained. She stopped crying and, wiping her eyes, smiled faintly. Then she became grave. "You're jealous of Eugene," she said. "He considered this for a moment. 'Yes,' he answered thoughtfully; 'I am. But I wouldn't think about him differently on that account. And I wouldn't talk about him to any one but you.'"

"You must go away," she said anxiously. "Oh, please, Joe!"

"Not yet. I want!" She coughed loudly. Eugene and Marie Pike had come to the window, with the evident intention of occupying the veranda; but, perceiving Ariel engaged with threads in her sleeve, they turned away and disappeared.

They made three false starts and then got away.

Other couples looked out from time to time and, finding the solitary figure in possession, retreated abruptly to seek stairways and remote corners for the things they were impelled to say.

And so Ariel held the porch for three dances and three intermissions, occupying a great part of the time with entreaties that her obdurate and reckless companion should go. When for the fourth time the music sounded, her agitation had so increased that she was visibly trembling. "I can't stand it, Joe," she said, bending over him. "I don't know what would happen if they found you. You've got to go!"

"No! I haven't," he chuckled. "They haven't even distributed the supper yet."

"And you take all the chances," she said slowly, "just to see her pass that window a few times."

"What chances?"

"Of what the judge will do if any one sees you."

"Nothing, because if any one saw me I'd leave."

"Please go."

"Not till!"

"Sh!"

A colored waiter, smiling graciously, came out upon the porch bearing a tray of salad, hot oysters and coffee. Ariel shook her head.

"I don't want any," she murmured.

The waiter turned away in pity and was re-entering the window, when a passionate whisper fell upon his ear as well as upon Ariel's.

"Take it!"

"Ma'am?" said the waiter.

"I've changed my mind," she replied quickly. The waiter, his elation restored, gave of his vands with the superfluous bonny loved by his race when distributing the product of the wealthy.

When he had gone, "Give me everything that's hot," said Joe. "You can keep the salad."

"I couldn't eat it or anything else," she answered, thrusting the plate between the palms.

For a time there was silence. From within the house came the continuous babble of voices and laughter, the clink of cutlery on china. The young people spent a long time over their supper. By and by the waiter returned to the veranda, deposited a plate of colored loaves upon Ariel's knees with a noble gesture and departed.

"No use for me," said Joe.

"Won't you please go now?" she entreated.

"It wouldn't be good manners," he responded. "They might think I only came for supper."

"Hand me back the things. The waiter might come for them any minute."

"Take them, then. You'll see that a jealous hasn't spoiled my appetite!"

A battle-shed figure appeared in the window, and she had no time to take the plate and cup which were being pushed through the palm leaves. She whispered a syllable of warning, and the dishes were hurriedly withdrawn as Norbert Filicoff, wearing a solemn expression of injury, came out upon the veranda.

He halted suddenly. "What's that?" he asked, with suspicion.

"Nothing," answered Ariel sharply. "Where?"

"Behind those palms."

"Probably your own shadow," she laughed; "or it might have been a draft moving the leaves."

He did not seem satisfied, but stared hard at the spot where the dishes had disappeared, meantime edging back cautiously nearer the window.

"They want you," he said, after a pause. "Hurry now, come for you!"

"Oh, is grandfather waiting?" She rose, at the same time leaving her handkerchief fall. She stooped to pick it up with her face away from Norbert and toward the palms, whispering tremulously, but with passionate urgency, "Please go!"

"It isn't your grandfather that has come for you," said the fat one slowly. "It is old Kakew Alp. Something's happened."

She looked at him for a moment, beginning to tremble violently, her eyes growing wide with fright.

"Is my grandfather-in-law sick?"

"You better go and see. Old Kakew's waiting in the hall. He'll tell you."

She was by him and through the window instantly. Norbert did not follow her; he remained for several moments looking earnestly at the palms; then he stepped through the window and beckoned to a youth who was lounging in the doorway across the room.

"There's somebody hiding behind those palms," he whispered when his friend reached him. "Go and tell Judge Pike to send some of the negroes to watch outside the porch, so that he doesn't get away. Then tell him to get his revolver and come here."

Meanwhile Ariel had found Mr. Arp waiting in the hall talking in a low voice to Mrs. Pike.

"Your grandfather's all right," he told the frightened girl quickly. "He sent me for you, that's all. Just hurry and get some things."

She was with him again in a moment and, seizing the old man's arm, hurried him down the steps and toward the street almost at a run.

"You're not telling me the truth," she said; "you're not taking me the truth."

"Nothing has happened to Roger," asserted Mr. Arp. "Nothing to mind, I mean. Here! We're going this way, not that!"

They had come to the gate, and as she turned to the right he pulled her round sharply to the left. "We're not going to your house."

"Where are we going?"

"We're going to your Uncle Jones'."

"Why?" she cried in supreme astonishment. "What do you want to take me there for? Don't you know that he's stopped speaking to me?"

"Yes," said the old man grimly, with something of the look he wore when delivering a clincher at the National House; "he's stopped speaking to everybody."

CHAPTER V.

THE Canaan Daily Tocsin of the following morning ventured the assertion "upon its front page that 'the scene at the Pike mansion was one of unalloyed festivity, music and mirth; a fairy bower of airy figures waiting here and there to the throbs of waltz strains; a veritable temple of Terpsichore, shining forth with a myriad of lights, which, together with the gorgeous profusion of floral decorations and the mingled delights afforded by Mink's orchestra of Indianapolis and Caterer Jones of Chicago, was in all likelihood never heretofore surpassed in elegance in our city. Only one incident," the Tocsin remarked, "marred on otherwise perfect occasion, and out of regard for the culprit's family connections, which are prominent in our social world, we withhold his name. Suffice it to say that through the vigilance of Mr. Norbert Filicoff, grandson of Colonel A. A. Filicoff, who proved himself a thorough Loco (the celebrated French detective), the rascal was seized and recognized. Mr. Filicoff, having discovered him in hiding, had a cordon of waiters drawn up around his hiding place, which was the charmingly decorated side piazza of the Pike mansion, and sent for Judge Pike, who came upon the intruder by surprise. He evaded the judge's indignant grasp, but received a well merited blow over the head from a poker which the judge had concealed about his person while pretending to approach the hiding place casually. Attracted to the scene by the cries of Mr. Filicoff, who, standing behind Judge Pike, accidentally received a blow from the same weapon, all the guests of the evening sprang to view the scene, only to behold the culprit leaping through a crevice between the steps of canvas which inclosed the piazza. He was seized by the colored coachman of the mansion, Sam Warden, and immediately pounced upon by the Gordon of Caterer Jones' dusky assistants from Chicago, who were in ambush outside. Unfortunately after a brief struggle he managed to trip Warden and the others stumbling upon the prostrate body of the latter, to make his escape in the darkness."

Not quite a mile above the northernmost of the factories on the water front there projected into the river near the end of the crescent bond above the town a long pier, relic of steamboat days, rotting now and many years fallen from its maritime uses. About midway of its length stood a huge, craggy shed, long ago utilized as a freight storehouse. This had been patched and propped, and a dangerous looking veranda attached to it, overhanging the water. Above the doorway was placed a sign wherein might be read the words, "Beaver Beach, Mike's Place." The shore end of the pier was so ruinous that passage was offered by a single row of planks, which presented an appearance so temporary as well as insecure that one might have guessed their office to be something in the nature of a draw-bridge. From these a narrow path ran through a marsh left by the receding river to a country road of desolate appearance. Here there was a rough inclosure or corral, with some tumble-down sheds which afforded shelter on the night of Joseph Louden's disgrace for a number of sleazy towns attached to these decrepit and musty vehicles known picturesquely and accurately as night hawks.

By 2 o'clock Joe and Mike's place had become beyond question unoccupied, and the tokens of it were audible for some distance in all directions. If, however, there is no sound where no car hears, silence rested upon the countryside until an hour later. Then a lonely figure came shivering from the direction of the town not by the road, but slinking through the snow upon the frozen river. It came slowly, as though very tired, and cautiously, too, often turning its head to look behind. Finally it reached the pier and stopped as if to listen.

Within the house above a piano of evil life was being beaten to death for its sins and clamoring its last cries horribly. The old shed rattled in every part with the thud of many heavy feet and trembled with the shock of noise, an incessant roar of men's voices, punctuated with women's screams. Then the plot quieted somewhat. There was a clapping of hands, and a violin began to squeak measures intended to be oriental. The next moment the listener scrambled up one of the rotting piles and stood upon the veranda. A shaft of red light through a broken shutter struck across the figure above the shoulders, revealing a bloody handkerchief, clumsily knotted about the head and beneath it the face of Joe Louden.

Joe opened the door and went in. All of the merry company (who were able) turned sharply toward the door as it opened. One or two nearest the door asked the boy, without great curiosity, what had happened to his head. He merely shook it faintly in reply and crossed the room to an open hallway beyond. At the end of this he came to a frothy bedroom, the door of which stood ajar. Seated at a deal table and working by a dim lamp with a broken chimney, a close cropped, red bearded, red haired man in his shirt sleeves was fiddling gloomily at a column of figures scrawled in a dirty ledger. He looked up as Joe appeared in the doorway, and his eyes showed a slight surprise.

"I never thought ye had the temper to git somebody to split yer head," said he. "Where'd ye collect it?"

He unwound the handkerchief and removed it from Joe's head gently. "Where?" he cried as a long gasp was exposed over the forehead. "I hope ye left a mark somewhere to pay a little on the score of this?"

Joe chuckled and dropped dizzily back upon the pillow. "There was an other who got something like it," he gasped feebly, "and, oh, Mike, I wish you could have heard him going on! Perhaps you did. It was only three miles from here."

"Nothing 'd liked better," said the other, bringing a basin of clear water from a stand in the corner. "It's a beautiful thing to hear a man yell when he gets a grand one like yer wearing tonight."

Joe, however, was already humming and hurrying from the room, returned immediately with a small jar of vinegar. Wetting a rag with this tender fluid, he applied it to Joe's head, speaking soothingly the while.

"Nothing in the world like a bit of good cider vinegar to keep off the fever. It may seem a trifle scratchy for the moment, but it assuages the blood p'ison. There ye go! It's the fine thing for ye, Joe. What are ye squirming about?"

"I'm only enjoying it," the boy answered, writhing as the vinegar worked into the rash. "Don't you mind my laughing to myself?"

"Ye're a good one, Joe!" said the other, continuing his ministrations. "I wish, after all, ye felt like makin' me known to what's the trouble. There's some of us would be glad to take it up for ye, and."

"No, no! It's all right. I was some where I had no business to be, and I got caught."

"Who caught ye?"

"First some nice white people"—Joe smiled his distorted smile—"and then a low down black man helped me to get away as soon as he saw who it was. He's a friend of mine, and he fell down and tripped up the pursuit."

"I always knew ye'd git into large trouble some day." The red bearded man tore a strip from an old towel and began to bandage the boy's head with an accustomed hand. "Ye taste for excitement has been growin' on ye every minute of the four years I've known ye."

"I've got $7," Joe said, without replying to Mike, "and I'll leave the clothes I've got on. Can you fix me up with something different?"

"I'll have the things for ye, and I'll let ye know I have no use for $7," returned the red bearded man crossly.

"What are ye sayin' fer?"

"I'm thinking of the poor fellow that got the mate to this," said Joe, touching the bandage. "I can't help crying when I think they may have used vinegar on his head too."

"Git to sleep if ye can!" exclaimed the Samaritan as a hideous burst of noise came from the dance room, where some one seemed to be breaking a chair upon an acquaintance. "I'll go out and regulate the boys a bit." He turned down the lamp, tumbled in his hip pocket and went to the door.

CHAPTER VI.

THE icy broke with a scream of wind out of the prairies and such cloudbursts of snow that Joe could see neither bank of the river as he made his way down the big ledge of ice. The wind struck so

WONDERFUL INVENTION OF A BUFFALO MAN

William C. Carr's Mail and Parcel Carrier.

FOR SPEEDY RURAL DELIVERY

Promises to Revolutionize Mail and Parcel Carrying in Congested Cities and Rural Sections—Problem of Rapid, Safe and Economical Parcel Transportation Solved.

[Buffalo Sunday News.]

If Fulton invented the steamboat to save people would laugh and belittle it. If Watts placed the steam engine on the market tomorrow there would be those who would seriously suggest a committee of alienists to determine his fitness for society.

Even now the men who are trying to perfect the airship are made objects of derision and are made the butt of more joking editorial paragraphs than any men in the world, save Bernard Shaw and Elijah Dowie. Yet the airship will come.

When William C. Carr of Buffalo projected the solution of the problem

ing arranged in boxes and attached to the carrier in the order in which the farmers' residences are located. The carriers are sent on their way at the rate of 25 miles an hour. Approaching a house for which it has mail the carrier slows down automatically, deposits the mail in a box and locks it. It picks up the mail the farmer has deposited in the outgoing box, rings the bell in the farmer's house, announcing the delivery, then proceeds on its way instantly picking up its speed of 25 miles an hour. At this rate every farmer on a loop of 25 miles can get his mail within the hour—say before 9 o'clock in the morning. Under the present Rural system the first delivery is received at 9 a. m., while the farmers living at the other end of the route does not receive his mail matter till late in the afternoon or early evening. Another surprising feature is that one man can operate as many of these loops as are required, from one central power house, the cost of each circuit of the 25-mile loop being only about 5 cents.

The argument that ice, snow and bad weather will hamper the operation of the carrier has been successfully met by Mr. Carr. The point of contact between the car and the rail is underneath, in an inverted "V" shaped groove, thus protecting it from the elements. In connection with the carrying feature a telephone service can be installed using the rails as conductors. This service, Mr. Carr asserts, can be given the farmers for about 25 cents a month.

be at the postoffice. Mr. Carr declares that the mail of the whole city of Buffalo could be collected and in the postoffice in 30 minutes.

It promises also to be the solution of the problem of rapid transportation of mails between cities. Its inventor asserts that mail can be transported through the underground system, from Buffalo to New York, at the rate of 150 miles per hour.

6. In the wheat belts of the West and Canada private systems might be installed on the immense tracks and the grain transported to the central granary at very small cost, the refuse straw being used to generate power. This same applies to the great wheat elevators of the South.

6. In the coal sections it can be applied to the transportation of the mined product from distant galleries to the mouth of the mine, saving thousands of mules and drivers. Experts say it will lower the cost of coal production by a great percentage. The same is possible in the gold, silver and copper mining sections.

7. Another feature that will make for its success is the fact that it will make electric lights, heat and power possible in every farmhouse along its route through the rural sections. Tapping the rails a farmer can enjoy electric lighting in his house, electric heat for his cookstove and electric power to operate his threshing machine. In short, Mr. Carr claims that the farmer can enjoy every electrical convenience that his city brother now enjoys. The invention has already attracted

The apparent possibilities of this as a rural carrier are easily understandable. The chartering of a special car, larger of course than the one pictured on this page, is entirely feasible; for the transportation to the city or village, or other market center, of garden truck, grain or any similar product. For instance the farmer can phone over the company's service for a special car for whatever he desires to take to market. Thus he is enabled to take his produce to the city or any point between for a nominal sum, leaving his horse at home in the field, without interference with his home work or diminishing his field force.

Granting that Mr. Carr's system is a boon to the rural sections, and it undoubtedly will be for it has now passed the experimental stage, it is even a greater boon to the cities where the transportation of package matter has grown with the big downtown stores. The growing prejudice against overhead wires and cumbersome apparatus, impelled Mr. Carr to further experiment with the result that he has produced an underground system, operated like his overhead carrier. He has eliminated many features of construction till the underground system can be bored at the minimum of expense and give the maximum results.

Assume that it is in operation in Buffalo, by way of illustration. The five largest stores, realizing that much of their sales profit goes into the maintenance of horses and wagons for delivery, combine and institute a station at Black Rock, another at Cold Spring and one in East Buffalo. All the packages of these several sections can be transported by Mr. Carr's system to these stations, thence transferred to the district wagons and delivered before the shopper reaches home, and at the minimum of cost.

The system is so generally applicable that it is practically impossible to touch on all its phases. However, summarizing:

1. It should be of incalculable benefit to the rural sections. In benefiting the rural sections it ought to benefit the government to the ultimate extent of millions of dollars, for it is generally conceded that the annual deficit in the postoffice department is due to the appropriations for the extension and maintenance of the Rural Free Delivery institution, which Mr. Carr's invention ought to eliminate entirely from rural life. This year alone, the appropriation is $26,000,000 or enough to install Mr. Carr's invention in the greater part of the territory now wanted for free delivery.

2. It would mean that it would revolutionize suburban and inter-urban delivery of packages, mail and like matter.

3. It will entirely change the complexion of the present city delivery of packages and the city delivery and collection of mail matter. Post boxes will be located under ground. A letter being dropped into a slide, such as now are in use in the big office buildings, will within 15 minutes of rapid, safe and economical transportation of mail and package matter his friends tapped their foreheads suggestively. When he announced his success, they smiled and added the traditional grain of salt. When he showed them his model, they put aside their smiles and marveled. And well they might. For it certainly does seem that Buffalo is the mathematical and inventive center that has produced the solution for which the government, great corporations and individuals have been clamoring these many years—particularly the last ten years when the necessity has daily become greater.

There is something uncanny about Mr. Carr's invention. As it proceeds to its duties there is something about it that makes the non-mechanic feel most uncomfortable.

Fancy a little car that travels silently, diligently overhead, leaving a package here, accepting another there, plugging the doorbell of the recipient and passing on, showing almost as much intelligence as a man and doing its work better.

One almost expects the little car to stop on its rounds and apologize for not having brought more mail matter or discuss the phases of politics or the weather.

Mr. Carr is well known among Buffalonians and for the past few years has turned his energy entirely toward inventive prospects. Several years ago he became impressed with the growing need of safe, rapid and economical method of transportation for mail matter, for the immense package consignments from the big stores, for the transfer of grain to central granaries of the big western farms, for the carrying of sugar from the remote parts of the great Southern plantations of the South to the refinery or railway station, for the carrying of coal from distant galleries to the mouth of the mine. He first considered the pneumatic system, then put it aside as valueless. Then he considered the overhead system and from his experiments has evolved his present system that is just now attracting much attention in the industrial world. Not only does it apparently solve the problem of quick transmission of mail and other matter, but it will also give to the public what has long been demanded of the government—a parcel post.

The system comprises a series of "V"-shaped metal poles supporting a double steel track, the length of which is limited only to the necessity. Save at the stopping places the tracks are from 12 to 30 feet above ground—far enough so that even extraordinary traffic is not interfered with. At the stations it is depressed and entirely accessible. Where used to supplement the present Free Delivery Service these lines will run in loops from a central station, the whole being, in shape, not unlike a daisy with its petals. From the central point, the motorized carriers are sent out, the mail and parcels for each farmer bea large number of capitalists, both American and foreign, from lands where the inventor now has patents pending. A construction crew is at work on a loop, 30 miles in length. It is entirely probable that within a few years Buffalonians will receive their shopping packages by way of this new system and will be excused for showing much civic pride in the fact that its inventor is a Buffalo man.

SHADOWS

On the Frosty Window

WERE THOSE OF FEIST AND MRS. MANGRUM, SAID HOLMES WHO TOLD OF HUGS AND KISSES.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 30.—The most interesting testimony today in the trial of Dr. Feist was that of Dr. W. N. Holmes, who in 1905 had his office in the same building as the defendant. Holmes said that one of the woman's disappearance he had seen two figures silhouetted on the frosted glass of Feist's office door. He recognized the parties as Dr. Feist and Mrs. Mangrum. They were embracing and kissing passionately. Witness told Dr. Feist next day to be careful when he did such things and get back of the light. Dr. Feist said: "By G-d, he did not deny doing it."

Witness saw Mrs. Mangrum come out of the building shortly afterward. The daughter of Mrs. Mangrum's landlady testified that on one occasion when Dr. Feist paid Mrs. Mangrum a visit, there was some lady's apparel lying in a graceful way upon a couch.

T. J. Stahl, Pullman conductor on the Chicago train on the night of December 14, was recalled by the defense and identified his signature to a diagram of the car that night, the diagram showing that five people got on the car that night in Nashville. No accusation appeared to show that space sold was not called for. Witness was shown a report which he made to the company's agent which he made to the company making an explanation of the irregular sale of a berth, in which he stated that he had no recollection of the various passengers and where they left the train. Witness did not write the statement exhibited but had signed it. A number of other witnesses were examined, but nothing extraordinary was developed. Dr. Feist asserted the increased bond without difficulty.

Bold Negro's Terrible Crime

Assaults Wife in Presence of Her Husband; Has Not been Apprehended.

Algonia, W. Va., Jan. 30.—Early this morning an unknown negro went to the home of James Gibson here, woke Gibson and his wife, and threatened them with death if they did not open the door. Mrs. Gibson opened the door and the negro entered, knocked her down with the butt of a revolver and kicked her. When her husband appeared, the negro covered him with a revolver, and threatened to blow his brains out if he did not return to bed. While Mrs. Gibson lay prostrate on the floor the negro assaulted her, while the husband stood by unable to aid his wife. After the assault the negro left the house and has not been captured, although a posse is searching for him. There is great excitement and a lynching is not improbable if the negro is apprehended.

TRY THIS FOR RACKACHE.

Get from any prescription pharmacy the following:
Fluid Extract Panderlon, one-half ounce.
Compound Kargom, one ounce.

Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.
Shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful dose after each meal and at bedtime.

The above is considered by medical authorities as the finest prescription ever written to relieve Rackache, Kidney Trouble and Weak Bladder. This combined mixture should act on the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys to filter and strain the uric acid and other waste matter from the blood which causes Rheumatism.

Being composed entirely of vegetable ingredients, it is harmless and inexpensive.

Mix some and give it a trial. It certainly comes highly recommended. It is the prescription of an eminent specialist, whose entire reputation, it is said, was established by it.

WOMAN

Cannot be Hypnotized

AND MADE UNCONSCIOUS TO AN ASSAULT, IS THE OPINION OF THE WISCONSIN HIGH COURT.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 30.—Rejecting the theory that a man can exert sufficient hypnotic influence over a woman to make her unconscious to an assault, the Wisconsin Supreme Court today ordered a new trial in the case of Rev. James Hofer, a Catholic priest of La Crosse, who was convicted a year ago of being the father of a child born to Mrs. Bertha Taylor, a young girl who went to him for religious instruction.

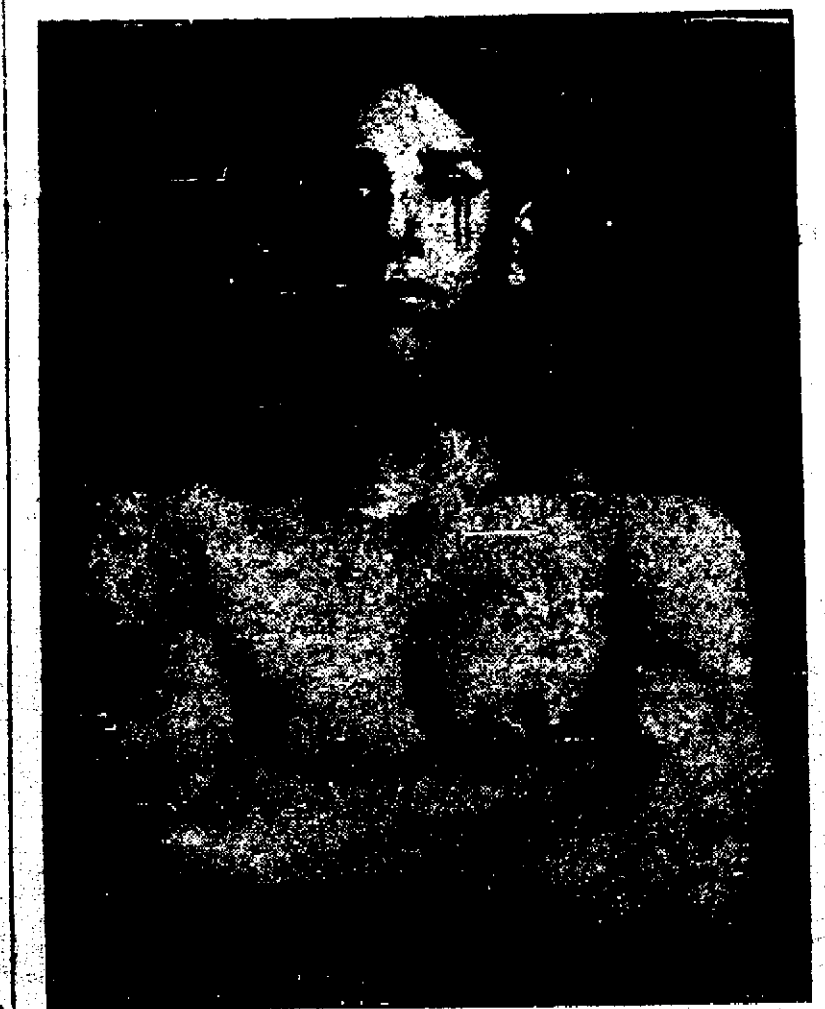

The girl alleged that on several occasions when she visited the priest's residence to receive confirmation lessons he made her take a white powder that gave her a peculiar influence over her and caused her to lose consciousness. The girl was then keeping company with several young men, and the priest vigorously denied the charge, but was convicted.

The Supreme Court holds that a man cannot be convicted of the crime charged on the uncorroborated testimony of a girl, as was done in this case. It is expected that the lower court will now dismiss the complaint against Father Hofer. Since his conviction he has been at liberty on bail and has retired to a brotherhood home at Dubuque, Iowa.

Arthur Mon Ture, the great Indian wrestler, who will wrestle Bartl at the Auditorium next Tuesday night.

A great wrestling bout has been arranged to take place at the Auditorium next Tuesday night between Fred Bartl, who recently defeated Al Akerman, and Arthur Mon Ture, the champion Indian wrestler, of the world in middle weight class. Mon Ture has never been defeated by a middle weight and has best such men as Chas. Conkle and Eugend Tremblay, of Canada, wrestled a two hour draw with Bartl and stayed 24 minutes with Gotch. Bartl says that he has the toughest wrestler that he has ever tackled. Match will be best two in three falls, catch-as-catch-can style and of catch weights.

REMAINS

An Eight Club League

OHIO AND PENN. CIRCUIT WILL REMAIN SAME AS LAST YEAR.

THIS BLIGHTS LIMA'S PROSPECT—THE SCHEDULE.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 30.—By a unanimous vote it was decided by the club owners of the Ohio and Pennsylvania League at a meeting here yesterday afternoon not to enlarge the circuit to 10 clubs for the coming season. The applications of membership from Erie, Zanesville and Sandusky were ruled out.

The majority of the club owners were willing to enlarge the circuit if Erie was admitted, but there was the hitch. Frank Baumester, president of the Interstate League and half owner of the Erie team, could not rescind from his original proposition of $2,500 for the Erie Club sale to any of the other teams. Zanesville and Sandusky positively refused to purchase Erie's release from the Interstate at that price. Although efforts were made to bring about a compromise, it was impossible. Had terms been arranged with Erie, the circuit would have been enlarged, but the fight between Zanesville and Sandusky for the tenth place in the circuit would have been a bitter one. That is why the representatives of the two cities held a caucus this morning and decided not to pay Erie one cent for its release. When this announcement was made Baumester practically withdrew Erie's application, although he left the settlement of the league matters.

After the club owners had disposed of the circuit question they brought up the schedule and it was decided to open the season about May 1. A schedule of 140 games will be arranged, and the league offers $50 to the person making the best schedule for the season.

It was decided that each city should have turnstiles at the gates.

After an argument it was decided to increase the salary limit from $1,500 to $1,800, plus the manager's salary. This will be enforced by President Morton, with power to penalize all violations.

Charles Morton, as president of the league, was empowered to settle all disputes without reference to the Board of Directors. This will avoid all annoying delays on protested games.

BARTL REPLIES

To the Charges of Fake Made by His Opponent.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

Fred Bartl, through his manager, E. C. Finley, makes the following statement regarding his recent match with Al Akerman, which the latter said was a pronounced fake:

Marion, Ohio, January 28, 1907. To the Editor of the Enquirer:

Dear Sir: Some time ago I noticed a challenge in your paper in which Ole Olson, the Swedish heavyweight wrestler, agreed to throw both Akerman and myself twice in one hour. I accepted the challenge myself, Olson agreeing to get five falls from me in 90 minutes. We met at Marion, Ohio, next Friday night, February 1, and I will endeavor to make it very interesting to Mr. Olson.

There has been a number of reports sent out concerning my last match with Al Akerman to your paper and others in the state, recently, in which it was stated that Akerman claimed to have "fired" down to me, and that he had predicted the time to the minute when he would lose. Akerman did state to Robert Finley, editor of the Lima Daily News, and to Frank Gugel, manager of the Columbus Ohio, Gynastic Club, that he would lose the first fall in one hour and a half, and the second fall in one hour.

I won the first fall in one hour and five minutes, and the second fall in 22 minutes, a total time of 87 minutes actual wrestling time. Compare this with the time stated by Akerman and you will see that he lost in just 55 minutes less time than he predicted.

I left immediately after that match for Hamilton, Ont., where I met and defeated Carl Busch, the German heavyweight, and did not know of the "fake" reports sent out concerning the Akerman match, until my return today, and take this as my first opportunity to deny that I was a party to any underhand methods of winning, and to show that I have confidence in my abilities. I will make the following proposition: Akerman, as I understand, is in Panama and will not return to Ohio for one month, but upon his return I agree to throw both Akerman and Alex Swanson ex-welterweight champion, each two falls in four hours' actual wrestling time. Yours sincerely, FRED BARTL.

Per E. C. Finley, Manager of Bartl.

Fatally Crushed Between Cab and Railway Engine

Was the Fate that Befell John Griffin, in an Accident at Columbus Grove This Morning.

CONSTRUCTION TRAIN DERAILED.

Deceased Had No Relatives in This Vicinity so Far as is Known—Remains Will be Held to Await Inquiry.

John Griffin, a laborer who had been making his home in this vicinity for several months, but of whose antecedents little is known, was fatally injured in an accident that occurred at the crossing of the Lima & Toledo traction line and the Northern Ohio railway track at Columbus Grove at seven o'clock this morning.

Griffin was late in reporting for duty this morning and missed the regular work train, which has a box car for the force of workmen, and was going to join his gang aboard the ballast train of the Stratford Railway Construction company.

When approaching the Northern Ohio crossing the engineer failed to get the train stopped in time to avoid the "derailer," and the engine and tender which left the rails, were forced across the Northern Ohio track by the impetus of the five ballast cars of which the train was composed. The steam pipe of the engine was broken by the accident and the escaping steam prevented the engineer and fireman, who remained in the cab, seeing just how Griffin received his injuries, but he was caught between the cab and the tender and so severely crushed that death resulted two hours later. One leg was broken and he sustained internal injuries.

It could not be learned this morning where Griffin came from or whether he has relatives elsewhere. For this reason the following description of him is given: Age about fifty-five years; bald; sandy complexion, height about five feet and seven or eight inches; weight about one hundred and fifty pounds; slightly lame in right leg.

SHORTEN HIS HOURS.

One friend who may know something of his history is Edward Dalton, an inmate of the county infirmary, who was absent from the institution today and whose whereabouts could not be learned in time to secure the information for today's paper.

The remains are at an undertaking establishment at Columbus Grove where they will be kept while a search is being made for relatives of the deceased.

Cataract Fifteen Years.

Mrs. S. A. Rogers, LeMoyne, Cal., writes: "I had chronic cataract of fifteen years standing, and death seemed to stare me in the face. I tried several so-called cataract remedies, and without avail. I took fifteen bottles of Peruna and five bottles of Manahan, and I am completely cured. All the cataract symptoms are gone, my digestion is good, my appetite is good, and I rest well at night. I am seventy years of age and I hope to live many more years to praise Peruna to all my friends who suffer from cataract as I did."

Rheumatism of Old Age.

Mrs. Caroline Trunk, 1706 Jefferson Ave., Peoria, Ill., writes: "I had a very painful trouble for six years, consisting of rheumatism in the back and in the thigh. I used a great deal of medicine, but it did not help me. Then I used Dr. Martin's Peruna, and two bottles of this entirely freed me of the rheumatism. I wish to keep both Peruna and Manahan always in the house. This is the best medicine that I can recommend any one to take for rheumatism."

Cataract All Through My System.

Mr. Robert Metters, Murdock, Cass Co., Neb., Box 4, writes: "I commenced to take Peruna the first of last February. I took it as nearly as possible according to directions. I also got a Peruna almanac and for the first time learned that my trouble was systemic cataract. I had cataract from my head all through my system. I took Peruna until I was entirely cured."

He told me he took Peruna last winter, and he is in the best of health, working every day and speaks highly of your medicine. I shall feel it my duty to recommend Peruna to all my friends."

A great many testimonials from people of high rank and people in the ordinary walks of life, are received every month. Cataract in all its phases, cataract of the different organs of the body; acute cataract, chronic cataract, cataract that has baffled other remedies—all these are giving to Peruna unqualified and unsolicited endorsement.

How Standard Oil Built Up The Monopoly

Role of Its Competitors a Distinct Part of the Policy of the Company's.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—Excerpts from the Interstate Commerce Commission's report, published in brief in yesterday's NEWS:

Profits Very Large.

"No instance," the report says, "is known where any railway company has been interested in oil lands or in petroleum production, and only one instance is shown where officials of a railway company were interested in the production and sale of oil. This relates to certain officials of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern railroad having owned stock of the Argand Refining company, which was on their recommendation afterward sold to the Standard Oil Company and the subsequent contract which the road transferred to the Galena Oil company, a Standard company."

"The Standard Oil company largely monopolizes the handling of petroleum from the mouth of the well until it is sold to the retailer, and sometimes to the consumer, and under ordinary circumstances its margin of profit is very large. Estimates made in the report show a profit on refined oil from the Sugar Creek refinery at Kansas City of from five to eight cents per gallon. A much higher profit is indicated for gasoline. The sale of refined oil from the large Standard refinery at Whiting is correspondingly profitable."

Not the Result of Monopoly.

"The evidence shows little basis for the contention that the enormous dividends of the Standard Oil company are the legitimate result of its monopoly. Except for its pipe lines, the Standard has but little legitimate advantage over the independent refiner."

"The Standard buys advertising space in many newspapers, which it fills, not with advertisements, but with reading matter prepared by agents kept for that purpose and paid for at advertising rates, as ordinary news. The assumption is that this literature furnishes many of the ideas touching the great benefits conferred upon the public by the Standard Oil company."

"Monopoly of the pipe lines enables the Standard to absolutely control the price of crude petroleum and the price which its competitors in a given territory shall pay. It can raise price in one locality and obtain its own oil from another, and reverse the process when it wishes to do so. Whoever controls the avenues of transportation of the raw material or of the refined product can speedily drive its competitors out of existence, and the production and distribution of petroleum is no exception to the rule."

The pipe line system of the Standard, the report contends, is not a natural, but rather an artificial advantage. It is argued that the reason why long pipe lines competing with those of the Standard have not been provided is found in obstacles in the way of such undertakings, having been opposed by the railroads, whose right of way has generally stood as a Chinese wall against all attempts to extend pipe lines. Ordinarily, it is said, the Standard has not received rebates in recent years, so far as has been discovered, but it has nevertheless enjoyed secret rates, possessing all of the elements of illegal rates, and the advantages so obtained over independent shippers have been of very great value to that company. Numerous instances of discrimination in favor of the Standard resulting from the published railway rates were found, says the report.

Instance in Point.

In this connection the following is an instance given by the commission: "A low rate of 10 cents per 100 pounds upon petroleum and its products existed for many years from Neodesha, Kas., where the Standard operated a refinery, to Kansas City. This was for the interest of the Standard, but when the Standard constructed its refinery at Sugar Creek, Kansas City, and connected it by pipe line with the Kansas City wells, the rate was advanced from 10 to 17 cents per 100 pounds. While the railway insisted that this was not done at the instance of the Standard, the significant fact remains in this and many other cases called to the commission's attention that the rate was not changed until it came to be for the interest of the Standard that it should be changed, and it was also changed as that company would naturally desire."

How Competition Is Stifled.

In discussing the assertion contained in the report that "the rule of its competitors has been a distinct part of the policy of the Standard Oil company," the commission says that one method has been the organization of a perfect system of espionage over the shipments of its competitors, resulting in knowledge as to the destination of every car of oil leaving the refinery of an independent. The Standard agent at the destination, says the report, is held responsible if the independent oil is sold.

The report continues: "It does not appear that the railroad companies have directed the furnishing of this information, or that the practice has been sanctioned by superior officials of the roads, but it does appear that such information is systematically obtained from railroad employees. The testimony shows that the Standard at one time, if it does not now, devoted a fund to the purpose of obtaining this information. It has frequently happened, when the supply of independent oil in a particular territory was low, and a shipment was peculiarly necessary, that the shipment had unconsciously gone astray. Information also appears to have been given the Union Tank Line, a creature of the Standard, concerning the whereabouts of its cars, while such information was not furnished to other owners of tank cars and some discrimination in tank car mileage in favor of the tank line is shown for one railroad."

Manipulation of Prices.

The assertion is made that it is the practice of the Standard whenever a competitor erects a storage tank to which the oil is transferred from the tank car, to reduce the price of oil in that locality to such a point as to make the business unprofitable to such a competitor, while prices were maintained in other localities. There was much complaint that the railroads allowed the Standard to erect its tanks at convenient points on the railroad right of way and declined to accord this privilege to independent refiners. The commission says that it is satisfied that such discrimination has been very generally practiced in the past.

The report shows that "at present" every considerable railroad in the United States is buying of the Galena oil company, one of the Standard companies, most of its lubricating and signal oils; the prices paid for signal oil, which is in three grades, being substantially the same to the various roads. The contract generally contains a guaranty to the road that the cost of lubrication shall not exceed a certain sum per mile or engine mile, and provide for oil inspectors appointed by the oil company to supervise the use of oil. The Galena company is rarely called upon to pay anything under the guaranty and the prices obtained by the oil company are extravagantly high. Oil of the same grade could be bought in the open market for about one-half the Galena company's prices."

Methods Arranged.

The report severely arraigns the Standard's methods of competition. On this point it says in part:

"The Standard has repeatedly, after becoming the owner of a competing company, continued to operate it under the old name, carrying the idea to the public that the company was still independent and competing with the Standard. It has used such purchased or independently organized companies to kill off competitors by such companies reducing prices. The operation of such fake independent concerns has habitually reduced the price against its competitor in a particular locality, while maintaining its prices at other places. When competition was destroyed it advanced or restored former prices. The Standard has sold different grades of oil at different prices from the same barrel. It has paid employees of independent oil companies for information as to the business of those competitors and has paid employees of industrial companies to secure the adoption of its oil in preference to that of its competitor. It has followed every barrel of independent oil to destination. Its agents are instructed to secure customers at any sacrifice. It has tampered with the oil inspectors in different states. The laws of several states concerning the inspection of oil are singularly defective, and this has been turned to profit by the Standard."

Taken Under Oath.

"The commission's only knowledge of the competitive methods of the Standard Oil company is obtained from evidence taken under oath in this investigation."

"The Standard was given permission to explain or rebut the facts. This evidence, if true, demonstrates that the competitive methods of the company in the past have been unfair and even disreputable. Its most to have been the destruction of competition at any cost and this policy has been pursued without much reference to decency or conscience, and it is significant that the larger independent refiners sell the greater part of their product in foreign countries. One independent testified that 25 per cent of his product went abroad and said that he could compete with the Standard in Germany where its methods as followed in his country would not be tolerated, but that he could not compete with it here."

Remedies Suggested.

On the question of remedies the report makes these observations: "More than anything else the pipe line has contributed to the Standard Oil monopoly, and its supremacy must be continued until its rivals enjoy the same transportation facilities. The amended act to regulate commerce makes the existing pipe lines common carriers subject to that act, and the power to prescribe just and reasonable rates, regulations and practices, after complaint and hearing, is conferred upon the commission. But the pipe line tariffs filed with the commission are alleged to be of no actual advantage to the independent operators. The commission can only act upon these schedules after complaint has been made challenging specific rates, regulations or practices. Some complaints are now pending. How far the amended act will prove adequate to the correction of such injustice as now exists in respect to this traffic remains to be seen."

Government Regulations.

"Since in the past petroleum rates have not always been established to promote, but often to check traffic, and the tariffs are more or less permeated with discriminations in favor of the Standard Oil company, having been built up during a series of years in that view, it may be that this discrimination will never be eliminated by any process of complaint against a specific rate or practice. Judging by the past, discriminations as to the traffic may arise more frequently than those now existing can be wiped out by that method. As in no other important traffic is there an approach to the monopoly of the Standard Oil in that of oil. Under these conditions it may become necessary to the uprooting of established wrongs and the prevention of others that the government set its face in the first instance the rates and regulations for the transportation of this traffic. This method has been adopted by the legislature of one state. It probably will be found necessary to disassociate in the case of oil, as in that of other commodities, the function of transportation from that of production and distribution. What other remedies in addition to those already provided it may be necessary to prescribe can be better determined in the near future by the results of experience in administering the present law."

Church as Biggest Graft.

RABBI PHILIP SAYS HE'S ASHAMED OF HIS HYPOCRISIES AND TRAVESTIES, AND WILL QUIT.

Akron, O., Jan. 30.—"The church today is weak in moral strength because it is subsidized by the aristocracy of wealth."

This is one of the sensational statements made in a letter written by Rabbi Isidor Philo, head of the Jewish Reformed Synagogue, and sent to the local typographical union on the occasion of its anniversary. "Ministers minister to the rich. They must," he wrote. "It is a question of living with them. It is about time ministers got together and organized a union. It might give them a necessary courage to speak the truth at all times, regardless of all costs."

"The Christian church has preached one thing and practiced another. Within the sacred precincts of the church some of the foulest crimes the world has known have been committed, the greatest hypocrisies perpetrated, the roughest travesties of religion enacted."

"I am ashamed of the church and of religion. Unionism is condemned because some of the men within its ranks are lawless. It is equally just to declare the church the oldest and biggest graft in existence."

"I would rather preach to workmen than millionaires; to bread winners than to trust manufacturers. I am for men, for laboring men, today, tomorrow and every day."

At the close of his long letter Rabbi Philo announced that he shortly would leave the ministry on account of his discontent and take up the study of law. He is regarded as the ablest orator in the city, and his letter created a profound sensation here.

ORPHIUM PROGRAM

Is of a High Order This Week, And Is Being Highly Enjoyed.

Manager Williams is to be congratulated upon securing the high class attractions he has presented to his patrons since the opening of the cozy Little Orphium. This week the bill is headed by Ed and Nettie Masse, who put on one of the finest musical acts ever put on the vaudeville stage. Eddie Martine, who is an expert wire artist, is direct from the Kleith circuit and does some daring feats on the slack wire. Swain and Powers, German comedians, keep the house in an uproar of laughter and are certainly clever.

Jeanere and Ellsworth, who put on a novelty act, are both clever in their juggling. Marie Showden, the clever little brunette, makes a hit in her singing and dancing. The motion pictures this week are also fine and these alone are worth the price of admission. Together with the able support of Prof. Goss, the bill affords a most pleasant evening, an evening's entertainment that is, in fact, good enough for anybody.
